Sunday's Service

Rev. Matt Alspaugh will give tomorrow's talk "Humility", and Dee Dee Camhi will be the service leader.

Here is a preview of the talk.

Humility seems to be very out of fashion today. Many business and political leaders, influencers, and their minions associate humility with weakness. They think they know everything worth knowing and can do anything worth doing. Sometimes it can be us as well.

Yet humility can make us open to what is new, understand what we don't know, and accept our limitations.

We will also celebrate the change of seasons marked by the Solstice.

Special Announcement

Bob Koches had returned to attending services in person and is looking for one more person to replace him as Zoom host. Please contact Bob at bobkoches@gmail.com, or Paula Odom at paulaodom@gmail.com if you can help.

Why this is late

I tried to adjust the font size for our old eyes, but it turns out that Gmail is cruel to anyone who tries to fuss with its formatting. The draft looked great on my screen but refused to transfer. This is the look and style we are stuck with. We will be back on Friday, looking just like this. I rekeyed the news this morning, and abbreviated some posts so I could get it out as soon as possible. Also, I was truly tired of trying to placate Gmail. It is very fussy.
