LCUUF News of the Week, September 28, 2025

This Week's Service

Ted Fahy and Kriss Gang will present Sunday's service, celebrating our annual Water Communion, and kicking off our stewardship program.

You are invited to bring a small amount of water, from your travels or from your house: the water that we will be sharing is a visual expression of how we as a fellowship commit to sharing not values, and our commitment to LCUUF.

If you do not bring water, no problem, we have a pitcher for you to share from.

The LCUUF Fellowship is a special part of many of our lives: as a spiritual home, a place to share our gifts, a sanctuary from a troubled world, and/or a community of care. And not just on Sunday. The work of this Fellowship, both within the congregation as well as in the Lakeside community, takes our Time, our Talents and our Treasure. The newly formed Stewardship Team is proposing a program that will be our opportunity to support the work of the church with our gifts. Within this framework we will share why being good stewards is vital to a healthy Fellowship, as well as the work that begins today!

Next Week's Service

Rev. Matt will give the talk, Compassion Every Day. The beating heart at the center of all great religion is empathy for the suffering of those around us. It takes practice to open the heart, to be compassionate, to ultimately respond to it, rather than turning away. We will examine how we can become more compassionate as spiritual practice, a part of our everyday life.

Preference is given to Mexicans from low income families, who could become more comfortable mobility.
